Submitting Your Project to the 2024 Sundance Film Festival

1) What are the submission deadlines and what are the fees?

The following deadlines are the dates by which we must receive a completed application for your project via FilmFreeway, including a digital upload or link. All submissions are handled identically, regardless of which deadline you choose. Late deadline submissions are processed and screened in exactly the same manner as early and official deadline submissions. The only difference is the fee. We encourage you to submit your project as early as possible to take advantage of lower submission fees.

Early Submission Deadline:

U.S. & International Short Films: Monday, July 31, 2023 - $45 entry fee
New Frontier Projects: Friday, August 4, 2023 - FREE

Please ensure that your project's submission status on your FilmFreeway account is listed as "In Consideration" no later than 11:59pm PST on the final day of the current deadline window. All submissions that are not 100% complete at that time will be disqualified and you will need to submit again during a subsequent deadline window. We recommend that you wait until your video file is ready to upload or your link is available before you fill out the application. For example, if you know you will be submitting your film for the late deadline, do not fill out the application until the first two deadlines have passed. If you submit a project with a non-working video file or link in order to meet the "In Consideration" status requirement before the deadline, your submission will be disqualified and you will be required to submit again during a subsequent deadline window.

2) What are the submission categories and how do I choose the right one for my project?

Each year, we select a slate of feature films, short films, episodic projects, and New Frontier exhibition and performance projects to screen within each of our Festival programs. Before you begin your submission, please read carefully the eligibility requirements for each category below and select the one that best suits your project:

U.S. Narrative Feature Films:

Any narrative or non-scripted work of fiction originating from within the United States with a running time of 50 minutes or more. In order to qualify as a U.S. Narrative Feature Film, the submitted project must be either scripted or improvisational fiction, or a fictionalization of actual events, and at least half of the project's financing must originate from within the United States. Only films retaining world premiere status are eligible for open submission to this category. Completed films that have been or will have been exhibited theatrically or otherwise made available to the general public, either for free or for purchase, prior to January 29, 2024 are not eligible to submit to this category. This includes, but is not limited to, public theatrical exhibition (festival or otherwise), television broadcast, home video, or any digital or online platform.

U.S. Documentary Feature Films:

Any nonfiction film originating from within the United States with a running time of 50 minutes or more. If your documentary contains re-enactments or other fictionalized depictions of actual events, you may submit it to this category, but we will ultimately decide which of our Festival programs is best suited for your project, if accepted. In order to qualify as a U.S. Documentary Feature Film, at least half of the submitted project's financing must originate from within the United States. Only films retaining world premiere status are eligible for open submission to this category. Completed films that have been or will have been exhibited theatrically or otherwise made available to the general public, either for free or for purchase, prior to January 29, 2024 are not eligible to submit to this category. This includes, but is not limited to, public theatrical exhibition (festival or otherwise), television broadcast, home video, or any digital or online platform.

International Narrative Feature Films:

Any narrative or non-scripted work of fiction originating from outside of the United States with a running time of 50 minutes or more. In order to qualify as an International Narrative Feature Film, the submitted project must be either scripted or improvisational fiction, or a fictionalization of actual events, and at least half of the project's financing must originate from outside of the United States. Only films retaining international premiere status are eligible for open submission to this category. Completed films that have been or will have been exhibited theatrically (festival or otherwise) outside of the film's country or countries of origin prior to January 29, 2024 are not eligible for open submission to this category. Films that have been or will have been made available to the general public in a non-theatrical form, either for free or for purchase, prior to January 29, 2024 are not eligible to submit to this category. This includes, but is not limited to, television broadcast, home video, or any digital or online platform in any country or countries.

International Documentary Feature Films:

Any nonfiction film originating from outside of the United States with a running time of 50 minutes or more. If your documentary contains re-enactments or other fictionalized depictions of actual events, you may submit it to this category, but we will ultimately decide which of our Festival programs is best suited for your project, if accepted. In order to qualify as an International Documentary Feature Film, at least half of the submitted project's financing must originate from outside of the United States. Only films retaining international premiere status are eligible for open submission to this category. Completed films that have been or will have been exhibited theatrically (festival or otherwise) outside of the film's country or countries of origin prior to January 29, 2024 are not eligible for open submission to this category. Films that have been or will have been made available to the general public in a non-theatrical form, either for free or for purchase, prior to January 29, 2024 are not eligible to submit to this category. This includes, but is not limited to, television broadcast, home video, or any digital or online platform in any country or countries.

U.S. Short Films:

Any film or video project originating from within the United States with a running time of less than 50 minutes, including credits. This includes scripted or improvisational fiction, nonfiction or documentary, experimental film or video, animation, music video, or any other short-form film or video project. In order to qualify as a U.S. Short Film, at least half of the submitted project's financing must originate from within the United States. Short films have no premiere requirements or prior screening restrictions that impact Festival eligibility and may have been screened at any number of festivals or other public theatrical exhibitions, broadcast or streamed on television or the Internet, and/or released via any home video or other public distribution platform anywhere in the world.

International Short Films:

Any film or video project originating from outside of the United States with a running time of less than 50 minutes, including credits. This includes scripted or improvisational fiction, nonfiction or documentary, experimental film or video, animation, music video, or any other short-form film or video project. In order to qualify as an International Short Film, at least half of the submitted project's financing must originate from outside of the United States. Short films have no premiere requirements or prior screening restrictions that impact Festival eligibility and may have been screened at any number of festivals or other public theatrical exhibitions, broadcast or streamed on television or the Internet, and/or released via any home video or other public distribution platform anywhere in the world.

Episodic Content:

Any live-action, documentary/nonfiction, or animation project presented in or intended to be presented in a multi-episode format. This includes pilots, pilot presentations, web series, docuseries, limited series, anthologies, or any other film or video project that was created to unfold over multiple episodes. Episodic projects may originate from anywhere in the world and you may submit single or multiple episodes of the same project, as long as all episodes play continuously in one single video file for digital upload and do not exceed 10GB in size. We accept both short-form and long-form content, with no restrictions regarding minimum or maximum episode or series length. Projects originating from within the United States are not eligible to submit to this category if the submitted content has been or will be made available in its entirety to the general public via any public theatrical exhibition or any broadcast, home video, or digital/online platform prior to January 29, 2024. Projects originating from outside of the United States remain eligible if any or all of the submitted content has been released only within the project's country or countries of origin or not released at all. If some but not all of the episodes have been exhibited theatrically or made available via any other public platform, you may only submit episodes that have not been exhibited theatrically or otherwise released to the public. For example, if the first season of your series is available online, you may only submit episodes from a subsequent season that have not been released to the public in any form.

New Frontier Projects

A wide range of innovative works and immersive experiences will be considered for the Festival's New Frontier program. These works may include VR/AR/MR/XR projects created for a variety of platforms, media installations, live cinematic performances, custom digital platforms, or any combination of those elements. We request that you provide documentation that outlines any specific logistical, spatial, or equipment needs for your project. Specific instructions for submitting different file types are contained within the application. We encourage the diverse creative community of storytellers and technologists to submit inventive works of fiction, documentary, and interactive projects for consideration. Projects may have previously been exhibited or performed at other festivals, industry trade shows, and/or events/conventions and still retain their eligibility for submission to this category. However, we do take premiere status into consideration in the final selection process. If your project includes immersive, interactive, or live performance elements, you should select the "VR / XR / Immersive" category when you create your project page on FilmFreeway. If your experimental film or video project does not include any of these elements, please select one of the feature or short film categories listed above. Questions regarding this specific program should be directed to newfrontier@sundance.org.

3) What are the Festival programs and eligibility requirements for each?

The Sundance Film Festival is comprised of both competition and out-of-competition film and episodic programs and the New Frontier program, all of which are listed below. You may not submit your project directly to any specific Festival program. If your project is accepted into the Festival, our Programming team will ultimately decide the program in which it will be placed. All feature-length films accepted into any of these programs are eligible to compete for the Festival Favorite Award, determined by audience balloting at screenings throughout the Festival. These programs may vary from year to year, so the information below is subject to change at any time.

At the core of our Festival program are our competition programs. Films that are selected to be in one of these six programs are eligible for jury and/or audience awards in their respective sections:

World Cinema Dramatic Competition:

These films from emerging filmmaking talents around the world offer fresh perspectives and innovative styles. Comprising films submitted to us in the International Narrative Feature Films category, films must meet the eligibility requirements listed above in order to be eligible for this program. We present these exceptional works as a way to honor the independent spirit in filmmakers everywhere. Films selected for this program will be presented both in-person and online (with geographical restrictions), and will compete against one another for jury prizes and an audience award.

World Cinema Documentary Competition:

The NEXT program may consist of films submitted to any of our U.S. and International Feature Film categories, both Documentary and Narrative. As such, they are subject to the eligibility requirements listed in each of those four categories above. Films selected for this program will be presented both in-person and online (with geographical restrictions), and will compete against one another for the NEXT Innovator Award and an audience award.

Short Film Competition:

Driven by innovation and experimentation, our Short Film program showcases filmmaking's most unique and original voices with cutting-edge animation and the best in short form dramatic and documentary cinema. All short films are selected from the U.S. and International Short Film submission categories and are subject to the eligibility requirements above. Short films may play before features or in one of our Short Film Programs, and all accepted short films are eligible for the Short Film Grand Jury Prize. Short Films will be presented both in-person and online (with geographical restrictions), and will compete against one another for jury prizes within their respective categories and genres (U.S. Fiction, International Fiction, Nonfiction, and Animation).

Projects selected for the following Festival programs will screen out-of-competition. Open submissions to our U.S. Feature Film categories must be world premieres, while open submissions to our International Feature Films categories must be international premieres. However, we reserve the right to select projects for some out-of-competition programs that do not meet these requirements.

Premieres:

Showcasing some of the most highly anticipated feature-length fiction and nonfiction films of the coming year, this program allows audiences to catch the latest work from established directors and renowned documentarians. Acceptance into this out-of-competition program is by invitation only and selected films must maintain world premiere status until January 29, 2024. Films selected for this program may be presented both in-person and online (with geographical restrictions).

Spotlight:

Regardless of where these impressive films have played throughout the world, Spotlight is a tribute to the cinema we love. We are confident you'll love them too. Accepted projects may include selections from the six Feature and Short Film categories listed above and must meet the eligibility requirements for each. Films selected for this program may be presented both in-person and online (with geographical restrictions). If your feature film has played or will play elsewhere prior to January 29, 2024 and you feel it is uniquely qualified for this Festival program, please contact programming@sundance.org to determine your project's eligibility.

Episodic:

Continuing our long history of supporting episodic creators and storytellers, this program highlights both fiction and nonfiction stories extending across multiple installments. To be considered for this program, projects must meet the eligibility requirements set forth for the Episodic Content category of submission, listed above. Projects selected for this program may be presented both in-person and online (with geographical restrictions).

New Frontier Exhibitions and Performances:

This experimental and exploratory section of the festival showcases out-of-the-box imaginations and bleeding edge technologies and features a wide range of immersive and multi-faceted works that engage with cinematic storytelling within the realms of spatialized media (VR/AR/MR/XR), multiplatform storytelling, emerging media installations, custom digital platforms, or any combination of these elements. Accepted projects to this out-of-competition program are culled from submissions to the New Frontier Projects category and subject to the eligibility requirements listed above. Accepted projects may be exhibited in-person, online, or any combination thereof. Projects presented on our online platform will be accessible to audiences around the world. Questions regarding this program should be directed to newfrontier@sundance.org.

4) How do you determine whether a film is considered U.S. or International?

Applicants should select their submission category based on the primary source of the project's financing. If 50% or more of the film's financing came from sources within the United States, it should be submitted as a U.S. film. If more than 50% of the film's financing came from sources outside of the United States, it should be submitted as an International film. If you are unable to make a selection based on financing, you may select the submission category that you feel best suits your project. However, we reserve the right to determine which Festival program your film will ultimately reside in, if selected. We will consider a number of factors to make this determination, including film content, production location, and nationality of the cast and filmmakers.

5) How do you distinguish short films from feature films?

Films with a total running time of less than 50 minutes (including credits) are classified as shorts. Films with a total running time of 50 minutes or longer are classified as features. You should select your submission category based on what the final projected running time of the film will be, including credits. We have no minimum length requirement for short films or maximum running time restrictions for feature-length films.

6) What is the definition of the term "public theatrical exhibition"?

As outlined in Item 3 above, your feature-length film or episodic project may be ineligible for many of our submission categories if a prior "public theatrical exhibition" has occurred or will occur before January 29, 2024 (excluding Sundance Film Festival exhibitions). A "public theatrical exhibition" is defined as any screening of your completed project for which tickets were made available for purchase or given freely to members of the general public, whether at a film festival or any other public screening or event. If you hold a "work-in-progress" screening of your project in order to raise completion funds, this does not count as a public theatrical exhibition. However, the version submitted to us must be significantly different than the one that was screened as a work-in-progress. Test screenings held for the purpose of obtaining feedback are also considered to be work-in-progress screenings. Additionally, private, invite-only or "cast and crew" screenings of your completed project are not considered to be "public theatrical exhibitions," and thus will not affect your eligibility, even if the invited guests are required to purchase tickets in order to attend.

7) How old can my project be and still qualify for submission?

All projects submitted for 2024 Festival consideration must have been completed in either 2022 or 2023. If your project was completed prior to January 1, 2022, it is no longer eligible for submission. If your project's production took place prior to 2022 but was not completed until 2022 or 2023, it remains eligible for Festival submission.

8) May I submit my project as a rough cut?

A large percentage of the projects we receive each year are unfinished versions with incomplete or temporary sound, missing scenes, no credits or titles, unfinished VFX, etc. However, the project does need to be complete enough for us to make a decision. If you expect that your final version will be 90 minutes long, it's probably not a good idea to send us a 45-minute rough cut. Where applicable, please provide an on-screen description of missing scenes or elements as placeholders within the continuity of the film. You should also list other general elements that are missing or incomplete on a title card before the project begins. Should you choose to submit a rough cut, you can replace it at any time with an updated version, but we can only guarantee that the first version we receive will be viewed! Please wait until you are comfortable with your cut before submitting your application.

9) If my project includes non-English dialogue, do you require English subtitles?

All projects that contain significant non-English dialogue must include on-screen English subtitles at the time of submission. A translated list of dialogue submitted digitally or on paper will not suffice. Please do not send us an un-subtitled foreign-language project with the intention of providing a subtitled version later. If your project is mostly in English and you wish to intentionally leave out subtitles for any non-English dialogue included as an artistic choice, you do not need to provide subtitles for those sections. Please ensure that all subtitles are hardcoded to your video file as opposed to including discreet subtitles that need to be turned on in order to display on the screen, such as utilizing the "CC" option on your Vimeo or YouTube upload.

10) Is my project eligible if it has aired on television or digital/streaming services?

If your project is a short film (less than 50 minutes in length), it is still eligible if it has been broadcast on television, streaming, VOD, or anywhere else. If your feature-length film (50 minutes or longer) or episodic project has had one or more local or nationwide television airings anywhere in the world, that version is not eligible for submission. However, it may be submitted if the version that was broadcast and/or streamed is significantly different from the one you wish to submit. For example, a documentary that aired in an hour-long television broadcast slot may still be submitted if a longer cut was created for the purposes of theatrical distribution.

11) Can I submit my project with a temporary music track?

Temp tracks, scratch music, and temp scores are perfectly fine for submission purposes, but please include a list of missing or temporary elements directly on-screen before the film begins. If your score is not complete or you have not yet secured licensing for any or all music included in your film, please include that information directly on-screen within your video file before the project begins.

12) Am I required to obtain rights clearance for trademarked or copyrighted material?

From a legal standpoint, you must license or obtain permission from the appropriate legal rightsholder for any and all trademarked and/or copyrighted materials included in your project before you can exhibit it publicly. If your submitted project contains unlicensed or uncleared materials, it is the responsibility of the owner or owners of the project to license, clear, or otherwise replace these materials in the event that Sundance or any other entity chooses to accept the project for festival exhibition. Sundance Institute will not be held responsible for ensuring that you have obtained licensing rights or other clearance for these materials at any point during the application process, nor will we be held responsible for the inclusion of unlicensed or uncleared trademarked or copyrighted materials held within the final version of your project. It is the sole responsibility of the entity or entities claiming ownership of the submitted project to secure licensing and/or permission from the trademark or copyright holders of the material in question. This includes music, stock images/footage, or any other elements that could violate an existing legal trademark or copyright. Projects that are accepted into the Festival will be required to sign a waiver stating that all materials contained within the project do not violate any existing trademark or copyright. Quite often, rights holders offer reduced rates for independently-produced projects, so we encourage you to contact them directly to avoid any potential rights infringements.

13) Do I need to meet a minimum age requirement in order to submit a project?

No, we encourage artists of all ages to submit their work. However, we do not have any separate submission categories or Festival programs that specifically showcase the work of student filmmakers. All officially-submitted projects compete against each other for available slots within each of our Festival programs. If you are under the age of 18 and your project is accepted, we will require signed, written permission from your parent or legal guardian before your project can be exhibited at the Festival.

14) Can I post trailers, clips, and/or scenes of my project online?

Yes. Posting minimal footage or scenes from your project does not affect its eligibility for any submission category. It is also acceptable for cast and crew to use scenes from your project for the purposes of a public or private exhibition reel.

15) Is there a screenplay competition at the festival?

We do not currently have a screenplay competition, nor do we accept screenplay or other written submissions. Completed feature films that are accepted into our U.S. and International competition programs are eligible for screenwriting prizes within their respective Festival programs, but the Festival does not have a specific competition for unproduced scripts, outlines, or story ideas. Please visit www.sundance.org for more information about other Sundance Institute programs that do accept written materials.

16) Which video formats do you accept?

We no longer accept submissions on Blu-ray, DVD, or any other physical media. All projects must be delivered as online screeners on your FilmFreeway project page, which offers direct digital upload or the entry of Vimeo or YouTube links. If you opt to provide a link instead of uploading a digital video file directly to FilmFreeway, your video file may be in any format/resolution accepted by the platform you choose. After you create a project page, you will be prompted to add a "Project File." This will take you to the page below:

Add an Online Screener

Link or upload your video. Only festivals you submit to can view your video.

Upload

Upload a high-quality video file, up to 10 GB.

Choose File

Your file will begin uploading immediately.

Link

If your video is on Vimeo or YouTube, simply paste the URL and password below.

URL

Password (optional)

Save

From there you may upload your digital video file directly by clicking on "Choose File," or you may enter a URL for an existing Vimeo or YouTube link. If you choose to submit a link, we recommend using password protection to ensure the highest level of security for your project. If you choose to upload a video file, FilmFreeway accepts all major video formats in full quality HD with a 10GB file size limit. All videos uploaded using this method will be transcoded for playback compatibility and performance, so your final submission video will be re-encoded using the following settings:

Maximum video bitrate: 2200 Kbps, H.264, mp4

Audio: 128 Kbps, AAC, 2 channel stereo

Aspect ratio preserved; maximum video height of 720 pixels

Important: If you submit a Vimeo link, be sure to update the privacy settings to allow for embedding! This does not allow us to do anything with your password protected video that we couldn't do before, it simply allows the Vimeo player to be displayed within the FilmFreeway interface. To allow embedding, go to your video while logged into your Vimeo account, then click 'Settings' > 'Privacy' > 'Where Can This Video be Embedded?' > 'Anywhere'.

We do not accept links via e-mail, nor do we accept links for video or file hosting platforms other than Vimeo and YouTube! Digital uploads and links for multi-episode projects in the Episodic Content category must be submitted as one continuous video— we cannot accept links to albums, multiple uploads, or separate links to different episodes. If you wish to update your project's online screener with a new one, you may go to the "Project File" tab on your FilmFreeway Project Page to replace your uploaded video or link.

17) How can I tell whether or not my submission is complete?

If your application is complete, the current submission fee was paid, and your video was uploaded by 11:59pm Pacific Standard Time on the final day of the current deadline window, your project's submission status will be listed as "In Consideration" on your FilmFreeway Project Page. You may check this status by logging into your FilmFreeway account and navigating to the "Submissions" tab at the top of the page. From there, please ensure that the submission status column next to "Sundance Film Festival" displays a circular green icon next to the words "In Consideration." If your submission status is listed as "Incomplete," please review your submission to ensure that all requirements and qualifications have been met and ensure that your video upload or video link is in place. If your submission status is "Disqualified," this means that your submission was not completed by the final day of the deadline window you selected. Projects that are not received within the selected deadline window will be disqualified by the Festival. If this happens, the main application contact will receive a notification from FilmFreeway and a refund of any submission fees paid. This does not mean that you are no longer allowed to submit your project! You may re-submit any disqualified project during another deadline window. For this reason, it is highly recommended that you wait until the version of the project you intend to submit is ready to upload at the time you begin your submission. If you believe that your project was disqualified in error, please contact programming@sundance.org. Your project will only be disqualified in the event that your submission was not completed by the deadline you selected. If you upload a non-working or incorrect video file or you provide a non-working link in order to qualify your film prior to any of the three deadlines, your submission will be disqualified.

18) Can I submit multiple projects in the same year?

You may submit as many projects as you wish using the same FilmFreeway account. Simply create individual project pages for each one and submit them individually. We do not offer reduced rates for multiple submissions. If you submit more than one project, you must pay the submission fee that corresponds to the selected deadline window for each of them.

19) May I submit multiple versions of the same project to different submission categories?

The short answer is yes— if you believe your project is suited for multiple submission categories, you may submit it to more than one, but only if you will be submitting significantly different versions of the same project to each individual category. For example, if you have a documentary project with a feature-length cut and another version that was edited into a multi-episode documentary format, you may submit it to both Documentary Feature (U.S. or International) and Episodic Content submission categories, but you will need to create two distinct project pages for it on your FilmFreeway account. Please do not submit an identical or slightly-modified version of one project to multiple categories. An example of this would be a short film that you believe could also work as an episodic pilot in its current form (or vice-versa). As a programming team, we communicate with one another about projects we love. If a short film programmer sees a project and feels like it could work well as a standalone episode for the Indie Episodic program, they will ensure that the episodic programmers consider it as well. If you feel that your project could work for multiple categories, you may indicate that in your cover letter.

20) What if my contact information or anything else about my submission changes?

You may log into your FilmFreeway account at any time to update or revise the information included on your project page. You may also upload a new version of your film or change your video link by navigating to the “Project File” tab. We will use the contact information from the “Submitter Information” section of your project page to contact you regarding the status of your submission, including whether or not you were accepted into the Festival. Please ensure that this information is always kept up-to-date! Sundance Institute will not be held responsible for incorrect or outdated contact information included with your submission. We recommend that you add the sundance.org domain to the “safe senders” list within your email client.

21) When will I find out whether or not my project was selected?

We contact all officially-submitted projects via email during the first week of December. With up to 15,000 notification emails going out in a very short period of time, it is not uncommon for many of them to be caught in spam folders or bounced back to us. This issue seems to affect Gmail accounts more than others. If you don't hear from us, please know that we have made every effort to contact each individual applicant no later than December 5th. If you do not receive a notification, please contact programming@sundance.org.

22) If my project is accepted, will it be presented both in-person and online?

While our final plans for 2024 are still a work-in-progress, we are asking all filmmakers and artists to commit to both live/in-person and digital/online presentations of all projects accepted into the Festival.

23) If my project is selected for the Festival, which exhibition formats do you accept?

We require a DCP of your film or episodic project for in-person Festival exhibition, as well as a ProRes file for online screenings, if applicable. Your DCP must include both a Closed Caption and an Open Caption version. ProRes files must also include Closed Captions. Short films must be delivered no later than December 21, 2023. Feature films and episodic projects must be delivered by January 4, 2024. Encrypted DCPs must supply open keys valid from the delivery dates above until the conclusion of the Festival. If your Virtual Reality Project is accepted, it will be exhibited on the platform it was created for, subject to availability. If your Virtual Reality Project is available for multiple platforms, we reserve the right to choose the platform best suited for exhibition. Please note that these specifications are subject to change at any time.

24) What kind of projects are you looking for? What stands out?

We celebrate the independent spirit of interesting, diverse, and original storytelling. Projects that push the limits of style and narrative excite us, but there is no single aesthetic or genre that we look for over any other. You should create the project that you want to create, not one that you believe will be a good fit for Sundance or any other festival.

25) Do you offer fee waivers?

In the interest of keeping our submissions process as thorough and unbiased as possible, we do not offer fee waivers to potential applicants. While we would love to eliminate submission fees altogether, the process of viewing the volume of submissions that we receive in a fair and thorough manner is very costly, and it is not fair to our applicants to offer fee waivers to some but not to others. We strive to keep our fees as reasonable as possible, and encourage all applicants to take advantage of our early and official deadlines to save on submission fees. All projects are required to pay the fee for the current deadline window at the time their project is submitted.

26) Do you offer resources for documentarians making work that could be controversial?

Sundance Institute is a partner in the Safe+Secure initiative, which focuses on the specific needs of documentary filmmakers navigating subject matter that could be considered risky, political, or otherwise controversial. For more information, please visit their website at www.safeandsecure.film.

27) You don't actually watch all of these submissions, right?

We depend on new talent to uphold our mission as a Festival of discovery. If we didn't view all of the projects submitted to us, we would absolutely miss out on many fresh and exciting new offerings from the independent creative community. To that end, it is in our best interest to treat all officially-submitted projects in an equal manner. If your account is paid in full, your project's status is listed as "In Consideration" by the selected deadline date, and there aren't any technical issues with your digital upload or link, your project will be treated in the same manner as all other projects submitted to us for Festival consideration.

28) Why doesn't my Vimeo link have any views?

As stated above, we absolutely view every project submitted to us with an account in good standing, but accurate statistics are not always recorded using Vimeo's methods of tracking loads and views. Vimeo videos viewed via a third-party player do not always record statistics in the same way that videos viewed via their direct link in a web browser are counted. FilmFreeway utilizes a third-party that enables us to screen submissions from within their platform. If we view your project using the Vimeo app on another streaming device (such as Apple TV or Roku), it is also being viewed via a third-party player. The vast majority of the films submitted to us are viewed in this manner, and therefore the statistics are not counted in the same way that they would be watched via a direct link. This is outlined directly in Vimeo's own online documentation here, the text of which is included below:

What stats does Vimeo record if my video is displayed using a third-party player?

Unfortunately, there isn't very much data we can gather from views that don't occur within the Vimeo player. For PRO, Business, Premium users using third-party player links, we can only approximate the number of times the file is being played. Multiple impressions / plays by the same viewer in the same browser session will not be counted (like they are when our own player is used). We also cannot count finishes or any engagement / duration stats for these plays. In many cases, we will still be able to detect the website where the view is happening, the location of the view, and the device, however, this is less reliable than it would be with our own player.

29) What is your timeline for inviting accepted projects?

While we generally begin making our decisions during the second week of November, our available program slots are determined throughout that month, with the goal of notifying all submitted projects of their status during the first week of December. Certain circumstances may result in a very small number of projects being invited prior to November, but the vast majority of our Festival program is decided in mid-to-late November.

30) Who can I expect to hear from if my project is accepted into the Festival?

If your project is accepted into the Festival, you will be contacted directly by a member of our Festival Programming team. We love to contact Directors and Lead Artists directly to invite them personally, so please be sure to provide their direct contact information on the application. During the invitation process, we will inquire as to whom the main contact(s) for your project should be going forward. This will be the person or persons responsible for delivering materials and other important information to our Artist Relations and Publicity teams in a timely fashion, so please have a point person in mind should your project receive an invitation.

31) If my project is accepted, what will I need to do next?

After you receive an official invitation from our Programming team, you will receive an email from your designated Festival Publicity Liaison and your designated Festival Artist Relations Liaison within 24 hours. Together, these two liaisons will guide you and your team through the next immediate steps you will need to take in order to prepare for our Festival press announcements and publications. We must gather these materials within a very tight window of time, so please respond to your liaisons in a timely fashion! Your assigned liaisons will guide you and your team throughout the process every step of the way; pre-fest, at fest, and post-fest.

For more information regarding the post-acceptance process, please check out our What to Expect if Accepted FAQ. It's full of valuable information to help you understand and plan for delivering all of the materials and information we will require and our timeline for receipt of those materials.

32) What are the dates of the 2024 Festival?

The 2024 Sundance Film Festival will take place from January 18 - January 28, 2024.
